SEAN MAYBERRY

Birthplace: Palmer, Massachusetts

Education: B.S.–Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute

M.B.A.–Emory University

Profession: Executive Director of StrongMinds

Family Status: I am married to my high school sweetheart and the most wonderful woman on the planet, Joanne. We have 4 amazing sons: Aid, Will, Si and CW.

Favorite Band: Today, I am listening to a lot of Prince, Michael Franti and the Red Hot Chili Peppers. But my all time favorite is John Mellencamp.

Favorite Movie: Moulin Rouge: I'm a sucker for a great love story plus it has awesome music.

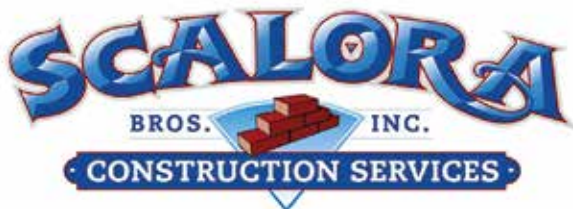

Favorite Sport: Let's go Mets!

Hobbies: I love to garden. Can someone in Maplewood tell me how to keep squirrels out of my tomatoes?

Most influential person to you: Jimmy Carter is my hero. His accomplishments since leaving the presidency are astounding. I was actually a Fellow at the Carter Center in graduate school and worked with Jimmy and Rosalynn–what a thrill.

Nonprofit work: I founded StrongMinds in my attic in Maplewood in 2013, and our mission is to improve the mental health of women in Africa. In 4 years, our amazing team has grown to 5 here in the village and to over 70 in Uganda. Our budget will surpass $2 million in 2018. Most importantly, we have treated over 20,000 impoverished women throughout the slums of Uganda who suffer from depression–the #1 cause of disability for women in Africa. We help over 80% of clients to become depression-free via our group talk therapy, helping these women to once again become mentally strong mothers and contributors to their communities.
